THE WEDDING CAKE

JOANA VASCONCELOS

Wedding Cake - a 12-metre-high sculptural pavilion in the form of a three-tiered wedding cake, clad entirely in ceramic tiles - is a major new work by celebrated Portuguese artist Joana Vasconcelos (b 1971). Almost five years in the making, Wedding Cake was commissioned by the Rothschild Foundation for Waddesdon, prompted by the relationship between visionary collector Lord Rothschild and Vasconcelos.

Part sculpture, part architectural garden folly, Wedding Cake is an extraordinary, enormous fully immersive sculpture which combines patisserie and architecture. Gleaming and icing-like outside and in, it offers an intricate and richly sensory experience – glazed in pale pinks, greens and blues, beset with sculptural ornament and complete with the sounds of trickling water and a site-specific lighting scheme. Wedding Cake is Vasconcelos' most ambitious commission to date, described by the artist as “a temple to love” that celebrates festivity and marriage.

Inspired by the exuberant Baroque buildings and highly decorative ceramic traditions of Lisbon - where Vasconcelos lives and works - the work is also a contemporary response to the great Rothschild traditions of hospitality with echoes of 18th-century garden pavilions.

Couples will be given the option to go to the top of the sculpture and pose as cake toppers, the perfect photo opportunity for on your special day!
